

MR. HAY IN NEW YORK

Secretary of State Given Ovation and Praises the Administration.

SPEAKS AT CARNEGIE HALL

Says the American People Are Not Seeking Any Change of Policy.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, October 26.—The crowd at the Republican mass meeting in Carnegie Hall to-night was so large that the doors were locked at 7:30 o'clock. At that time all the available space within the hall was filled, and several thousand people were crowded about the entrances seeking admittance. John Hay, Secretary of State, who made the first speech, was given an ovation when he appeared. The band played and flags were waved in every part of the house, while the audience cheered.

Secretary Hay was introduced as "one of the greatest living Americans, and the foremost diplomat in all the world." Great cheering greeted the Secretary as he arose. He said in part: "This campaign is one of the quietest ever known. It is in my recollection has there been so little excitement, so slight disturbance of the ordinary course of affairs. Why is it that these great assembles, where eighty millions of people are to decide in whose hands they are to place their interests for the next four years, should be approached with so little noise, with such unusual calm? Why is it that the American people are possessing their souls in such repose?"

No Change of Policy.

"There is, I venture to say, no explanation of this state of feeling, except that the people of this country have made up their minds that there is to be for the present no change in the principles and policies that have proved so successful in the last eight years. They have resolved definitely and clearly in 1898 that their temporary aberration from the policy which as long ago as the time of Henry Clay was called the American system, had not resulted favorably. They entrusted William McKinley with the task of bringing the country back to its old bearings, of restoring the well tried ways of the national housekeeping. He showed himself worthy of their confidence."

Has Shown Progress.

"In four years the country made great progress along its regular old-fashioned lines of healthy development, and in 1900, when he gave an account of his stewardship, the people approved it and renewed his term of office. An honorable crime snatched him away from his glorious task and our loving confidence. In the classic myth, when the golden age of the world was over, another immediately appeared in its place. Theodore Roosevelt took up the burden our beloved chief laid down and with incomparable courage and strength has carried it on. With the work of both of these faithful servants the American people are satisfied that the work shall go on in the hands and under the guidance which has been found so efficient. They are not wasting so much time as in an interest which is too universal to need much advertisement."

Friends and Equals.

In concluding, Mr. Hay said: "Our possessions beyond the seas will be governed with firmness and liberality, with an ever-increasing measure of freedom, as they develop the faculty of self-control. We shall continue to treat our sister republics of this hemisphere as friends and equals, not coveting their goods or their territory, but desiring only their peace and their friendship. Our relations with the rest of the world will remain as they have been in recent years, with frank and honorable amity with all, and entangling alliances with none. Our ideal will be justice, the desire of our hearts, to which the love of our hands will be devoted, prosperity and peace."

New Splendor to Glory.

"It quickens the pulses to think what splendid progress we are to make on every line of national welfare in the next four years, with Theodore Roosevelt at the helm, with the young manhood, with lofty hopes and purposes, with large experience of life, with the country his only care and God his guide, with all his high office with reverence for the law and the Constitution, as ever in his great taskmaster's eye, his face in history will add new splendor to the glory of his native State."

"Men of New York, you will allow it to be said that when you fell away? When President Roosevelt ascends the steps of the Capitol next March, shall it not be that you have placed your part in his triumph? If that shall be so, yours will be the loss, not his."

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism, one of the most painful of all diseases, is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood and attacks the joints of the ankles, knees, hips, elbows, wrists and shoulders—even the fingers, toes and soles of the feet. It often attacks the neck, the back and most dangerous of all, the heart. The disease is accompanied by the most excruciating bone pains, and soon causes the joints to become stiff and practically useless.

Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.) reaches at once the internal source of the malady and counteracts the acid condition of the blood, dissolves and dissipates the rheumatic poison, relieves the pain, lubricates the joints and builds up the whole system. The fearful ravages of the disease are remedied and the sufferer gradually regains the strength and vigor of perfect health. It cures the most obstinate, long-standing cases where doctors, hot spring treatments and all other remedies have failed.

Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.) is sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle, and is guaranteed to cure.

GORMAN AT LAUREL.

Maryland Senator Talks to Neighbors of Roosevelt.

(By Associated Press.)

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—Senator Arthur Pue Gorman made what will possibly be his only speech during the present campaign at a large mass-meeting in this, his home town, to-night, and devoted the greater portion of his address to an attack on the present administration, militarism, and official extravagance. Senator Gorman said in part:

"The Republican party is a great party and ordinarily it is safe. In this campaign, however, you are not dealing with the Republican party, a party composed of free American citizens. You are dealing with a one-man party in Theodore Roosevelt. He completely dominates the party and hastened it from the paths of rectitude and honest dealings. How he obtained this power over his party I am unable to say, but that he has it no one will deny."

Eulogizing Lincoln, the speaker said that he had tried to bring peace and prosperity to the South at the close of the war, "while here, thirty-nine years after the conflict ended, comes one Theodore Roosevelt, to re-open the old wounds and threaten a people, who have greater burden to bear than any other people on earth, with negro domination which means threatening their homes. In an eulogy of Grant, Senator Gorman declared that that great soldier upon becoming President, declared against a large standing army in which he was upheld by another great soldier, Gen. Jno. A. Logan, who framed the bill limiting it to 30,000 men, yet here is Theodore Roosevelt, a little soldier of less than ninety days, with dreams of an empire to be made by him, who forced the passage of a law increasing the standing army to 100,000 men and bringing the State militia organizations under presidential control. Roosevelt promised by McKinley's line to follow in his footsteps and he has followed in the opposite direction. He has built up an army and a navy too large for the country and he has bullied South American Republics and taken from one Colombia, its most valuable asset. In doing all these things, the money of the American people has been spent like water and corruption has crept into the public service."

Gives His Version.

Prince Kerestell, an officer of the battleship Emperor Alexander II, has been interviewed and gives the following explanation of the attack by the Baltic squadron on the three trawlers off Dogger Bank.

"The transport Aniol, which was steaming ahead of the squadron, was suddenly surrounded by eight torpedo boats and requested assistance, whereupon the battleship division advanced and signalled to the unknown vessels to leave or disclose their nationality. The vessels refused to obey and advanced among the Russian battleships. Suddenly a cannon shot was heard from an unknown vessel. Then the admiral formed in battle line and replied to the fire, afterwards continuing his voyage."

REGRET EXPRESSED.

Russian Government Says That It Feels Sure the Firing Was an Error.

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, October 26.—11 P. M.—The Russian reply to Great Britain's note on the subject of the North Sea tragedy has been received by the British government. It expresses deep regret at the occurrence and promises full reparation so soon as an official report is received from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky. The reply was received by Ambassador Benckendorff during the night, and was forwarded to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne by the cable of the day. While the ambassador, waiting on cable instructions from St. Petersburg, gave the above assurances, adding that while the Russian government, at the time of the firing, was still without official knowledge from its own sources of the occurrence in the North Sea, it feels so certain it was an error that it wishes at once to express its regret, and assures the British government that full compensation will be made as soon as the details are received.

REPLY IS INCOMPLETE.

Great Britain So Considers the Note of the Russian Government.

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, October 26.—5:22 P. M.—Foreign Secretary Lansdowne considers that Russia's reply to the British note is incomplete, especially in the failure to grant Great Britain's demand for the punishment in principle of such officers as might be found responsible. Lord Lansdowne said late this afternoon, however, that he trusted the matter would be settled within twenty-four hours.

In interviews at the foreign office with the foreign ambassadors, this being the regular reception day, Lord Lansdowne, though in no degree pessimistic regarding the eventual outcome, gave his callers clearly to understand that he did not regard Ambassador Benckendorff's letter as altogether satisfactory, and that it was distinctly incomplete. It was gathered that Lord Lansdowne has insisted in the written reply, to be handed to Ambassador Harring, by Foreign Minister Lansdowne, punishment in principle shall be included, and that though Great Britain is unable at the present moment to specify the individuals likely to be found responsible, Russia must pledge herself not only to ascertain who is responsible, but to punish them in the most severe manner. Until Rojestvensky's report was received Russia has exhibited reluctance to give such a pledge, believing that an ample official information on their own side, would be sufficient.

One of the ambassadors who visited Lord Lansdowne to-day said that not one of his colleagues believed that a hostile issue was possible. He said that the British public opinion, which is being fanned into feverishness far more by the announcement of the precautionary naval preparations than by the news of the outrage itself.

TENSION IS INCREASED.

Unsatisfactory Reports Tend to Inflame the Public Mind.

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Oct. 26.—Tension increases as time passes without a definite settlement incurred by the Russian blunder in the North Sea. General Kurapatkin and Field Marshal Oyama seem to be watching each other like hawks. It is impossible to say which will make the first serious move. There are occasional exchanges of desultory firing at the outposts, but nothing of great importance has transpired. On Sunday night the Japanese made a feeble attempt upon Lone Tree Hill, but the attack was not pressed. The Russians used several siege guns of great range on Monday, bombarding the Japanese positions near Shinkai. The Japanese replied with Shimone shells. The Chinese say the Russian fire destroyed three Japanese field pieces.

The Japanese have evacuated Shinkai railroad station, but it and the railroad bridge between the lines are in the field of fire on both sides. Although it is reported that there is no activity on the Russian left flank, little is really known concerning the situation there. A Japanese movement from the west along the railroad is reported, but this has not been confirmed. The general state of uncertainty breeds many rumors. On Monday a quite heavy artillery fire was heard westward.

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

Fighting of Vigorous Nature Expected Shortly in the Far East.

BOTH SIDES ARE PREPARING

When Forces Get After Each Other Again Results Will Come.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, October 26.—12:50 P. M.—The quiet now prevailing at the theatre of war is considered to be only the calm before a storm. There is every indication of the imminence of the resumption of fighting on a large scale as the proximity of the two armies make it impossible for them to much longer defer a renewal of the battle. The correspondents at the front are strangely silent concerning the coming developments, but from the slight movements reported and the continual reconnoitering of the Japanese positions it is regarded as certain that General Kurapatkin has a perfectly free hand accorded him by his election to the post of commander-in-chief, and that he is about to undertake an offensive movement. Field Marshal Oyama is reported to be fortifying his whole line south of the Shinkai River, showing that he is preparing to meet the Russian onset. Not a ray of light as yet has been shed upon Kurapatkin's plans. Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, on the other hand, announcing Kurapatkin's appointment, is in the same granite vein as Kurapatkin's order of October 25th, and is regarded as having definitely established the authorship of that ill-starred document. While Alexieff takes particular pains in turning over the supreme command of the land forces to Kurapatkin to inform the soldiers and the world of the marks of imperial confidence reposed in him and to announce that he will remain as viceroy, the order is considered as a virtual farewell address, and that it will soon be followed by his return to St. Petersburg. His elimination as a factor in the military situation has caused a sign of relief.

RUSSIANS ARE FOXY.

Are Getting Their Bearings as to Moving Their Ships.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Associated Press learns that while there is foundation for the rumor which recently emanated from the British government, that the Russian government is approaching the Sultan with the view of obtaining his consent to the passage of the Dardanelles, it is actually taking steps to sound the other continental governments as to whether any objection would be raised by them in event of a formal request being presented by Russia to the Powers jointly for the removal of the international neutrality of the Dardanelles. It is obvious that whatever may be the replies of other governments to the Russian inquiries, it would not be possible at the present juncture of affairs in the Far East for Great Britain to acquiesce in such an arrangement.

SITUATION DELICATE.

Regarded as Extremely So by the Russian Government.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26.—3:30 A. M.—An official of the admiralty said this morning that no reward had yet been received for the capture of the Russian trawler "Aniol." The official continued: "The delay in getting the Russian version of the North Sea affair is proving extremely embarrassing to the government. It is felt that, in the inflated state of British public opinion, the inexplicable absence of the official report is becoming a most serious factor and renders still more difficult an already delicate situation."

While the good faith of the Russian government in its efforts to probe the affair is not questioned, it is evident from renewed British inquiries at the foreign office that the delay was not due to a lack of time limit for a response to the British note has been fixed, King Edward's government is not in a humor to nor in a position to brook unreasonable delay. It is realized that each day's delay will render the temper of the people and the admiralty more impatient. The possibility of course remains that the information being received by the admiralty is incorrect, and that the report is already in the hands of the Emperor; but if so the delay is inexplicable. The possibility of a Japanese attack is now expected shortly. The Russian batteries continue to harass the Japanese; otherwise all is quiet.

The Japanese dead recently found showed that the Russian batteries had been prepared for a winter campaign, whereas the Russians have not received their winter outfits.
